THE EARTH'S CRUST.

Now that the earth's crust seems to be getting into such an explosive condition, it is satisfactory to learn (says The Standard) that one alleged volcano has been proved an impostor. As a telegram from Odessa states, the rent which had formed on the side of a mountain near Irkutsk, in Siberia, and was said to be emitting steam and white hot material, has been tened down by some scientific investigators to nothing mora serious than heds of carbonaceous shale or slate, which had caught fire, very probably from spontaneous combustion. Cases of the kind are not uncommon, and this is by no means the first that has occurred towards the interior of Asia, Volcanoes were formerly asserted to exist in the Thian Shan chain, and we find lists of them given by some authorities ; but, during the last few years, Russian travellers have investigated them, and in no single case has the statement been authenticated. One of them, indeed, Katon in the Ili Valley, was an exact parallel to the so-called Irkutsk crupti n. for it turned out to be nothing more than some beds of coal which had become ignited. Volcanoes are also said to exist in the Interior of China, but according to the most recent English book on the subject this cannot be regarded as certain, and the report not impossibly may have a similar foundation. In fact, all the great mountain chains in the interior of Asia, from the Himalayan to the Thian Shan, appear to be remarkably free from volcanoes. A few craters exist on the high plateaux of Tibet, between the Kuen Lun chain and the Lob Nor, and one or two others have been described on the Northern side of the Desert of G bi, but all appear to be extinct. Ignition from spontaneous combustion may, of course, occur wherever rocks of the right mineral composition exist. The material must be wither inflammable, and some chemical substance must be present locally to act as a selfstriking match. The former condition is common enough. A chip, for mstance, of the well-known oil-shales of the Central Valley of Scotland can be readily lit in a candle-flame, and, if quictly withdrawn, continues to burn for some time. The natural kindling is commonly done by pyrites, or iron sulphide, a brasslike mineral very common in coals and carbonsecous rocks. This, in the presence of water and air, readily undergoes chemical changes, evolving heat in the process enough to cause ignition. By this means coal-pit banks are not unfrequently fired, and sometimes even seams in the pit, when putting them out is a difficult and costly task. But any kind of bituminous rock may be ignited, and a case similar to those already mentioned actually occurred on the South coast of our own country. At Ringstead Bay, in Dorset, the cliffs are formed of Kimeridge Clay, a dark shaly mass belonging to the Upper Oolites, which is so bituminous as to be sometimes used, notwithstanding its unpleasant odour, for fule by neighbouring cottagers, and the same has been worked inland for mineral oil. But at a place in the Bay called Holworth Cliff-combustion began in September, 1826, and during a period of many months, as Mr. H. B. Woodward tells us in his Geology of England and Wales, considerable volumes of flame were emitted, probably originating in the heat produced by the decomposition of the iron pyrites with which this shale occasionally abounds. All rumours of volcanic eruptions very far inland, unless the place be near a large lake, are likely to have no better foundation. The great majority of volcanoes are situated either on islands or at no very long distance from the sea. The rule, no doubt, has a few exceptions. Tolina and Cotopaxi are about one hundred and twenty-five miles away ; Popocatopetl and Sangai, some thirty miles more distant ; but as steam is so freely ejected during every eruption, not only in immenso volumes from the crater, but also disengaged from the flowing lays, it is difficult to see how a sufficient supply can

Lord Salisbury as a Bushranger.

A story apropos of the Marquis of Salisbury's visit to Bendigo in the early tifties is told in the Daily Express. * While rambling in the bush, Lord Robert Cecil, as he then was, lost himself in a bewildering maze of gum trees. In his despair he met two clergymen, to whom he appealed | Edie, he was found dead in the cabin with for help, but instead of responding they a revolver lying by his side, and a bullet fled as fast as their feet could carry thom. Lord Robert managed to extricate himself from the nysteries of the bush, but he was puzzled to understand the flight of the clergymen. Then a few days after he met them at dinner. They recognised each other at once, and one of the clergymen explained the situation by saying, 'Why you are the bushranger from whom we rau away.' Lord Robert did not do any digging at Bendigo. He was merely an interested

CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDI TS intended especially for coughs, colds, eroup, whooping cough and influenza, It has become famous for its cures of these diseases over a large part of the civilized world. The most flattering testimonials have been received, giving accounts of its good works; of the aggravating and persistent coughs it has cured; of severe colds that have yielded promptly to its soothing effects, and of the dangerous attacks of croup it has cured, often saving the life of the child. The extensive use of it for whooping cough has shown that it robs that disease of all dangerous results. A Tedious Trial. Roland B. Molineaux, son of Genera Molineaux, who was accused in 1300 of the murder of a Mrs Adams, has just been amquitted. The prosecution, on the first trial, secured a conviction. Molineaux, it was alleged, sent a bottle of poisoned bromo seltzer to 'Harry' Cornish, of whom he was jealous on account of Cornish's relations wth Blanche Cheeseborough, whom Molineaux had married. Mrs Adams was a woman with whom Cornish boarded, and was the one to take the bromo-seltzer, from the effects of which she died. The jury on the first trial brought in a verdict of guilty and Molineaux was sentenced to death. The court of appeal reversed the verdict on technical grounds and granted a now trial. It is this trial which has just been concluded. No case in recent years has attracted greater attention in America than this is one, on amount of the standing of Mr Rhodes' Curious Bargain.

The Neuse Wiener Journal has a curious story about the late Mr Cecil Rhodes. It says that in the early nineties Mr Rhodes visited Paris and inspected Mr Kahn's picture gallery. He was very much interest ed in a Rembrandt, which Mr Kahn offered him for £1,000. Mr Rhodes, however, ment. was not in the buying mood, and made the following original bargain. Should Mr Kahn die first the Rembrandt was to enter Mr Rhodes' possession, while in the event of the latter's dying before Mr Kahn, that gentleman would receive. £6,000. The Journal states that on Mr Rhodes' will being read it was found to contain a clause bequeathing that sum to Mr Kahn.

Rowdy Buffaloes.

A few weeks ago, we called attention to the danger to the public arising from allowing buffaloes and other cattle to perambulato-the streets and roads of the Colony. When we did so, we did not expect the Government to take any immediate action to mitigate a nuisance that is getting more pronounced every day. The merry buffalo has been indulging again in mad antics down East, and a horse has been injured. The horse belonged to Mr E. C. Pontifex. A Police Court case arose out of the incident; but as the buffale had been led in the first instance and not allowed to wander about loose, the Magistrate (Mr J. H. Kemp) dismissed the cattledealer at Wongneicheong to whom the buffalo belonged. Perhaps when some person has been killed the Government will adopt new methods of dealing with the Manila Myths.

This seems to be the silly season in Manila, if the capital of the islands of recently-assumed importance can be said to have any such distinct period in the year's cyclo. The latest tit-bit is a revival in new form of the old tale, time and again exploded, of Canada's sighs for a place amongst the stars and stripes of Cousin Jonathan's spangled banner. A very special New York cablegram to one of the island papers tells us that 'Strong parties are being formed in various provinces of Canada, advocating the annexation of the Dominion to the United States. On the 12th inst., a meeting held at Winnipeg was attended by about two thousand persons and an organization was effected. The new party will ask United States government for support, and proposes that Hawaii, Guam, and the Philippines be ceded to Great Britain to secure her acquiescence. Feeling between the English party and the Annexationists is very bitter, and small riots have occurred. The movement is strongest in the west. No official notice has been taken of the affair by either government.' Why this tail-piece?

SHELL' BOAT BLOWN UP.

The Captain Killed.

The Singapore Free Press reports a shipping disaster involving the loss of one life if not more. The s.s. Geneffe (Capt. ago for Palembang to load petroleum, the vessel being one of the oil fleet of the Shell Transport Line. At Palembang the disaster happened. The exact particulars are not known, but it seems either that the boiler burst, or that the cargo caught fire and in any case the vessel was hopelessly wrocked and the Captain was killed. No news of any further loss of life is to hand, but an engineer is reported as missing. At present the cause of the accident is not known. The Geneffe's master, Capt. Walker, is well known and liked in Singa-pore and the Straits and the chief officer, Mr Kusak, who, apparently, is safe, is also popular. The Geneffe was built at Renfraw in 1884 and was of a net tonnage of 193. She was registered at Singapore in 1901 by the Shell Transport Co. The Genefie carried about 300 tons of oil, benzine and refined kerosene, and acted in a way as a supply boat to the larger vessels of the Shell Line which are unable to get up the river. Latest information goes to show that cargo blew up, and that the ongineer mentioned as missing is dead

MY NOTE-BOOK,

By the Casual Critic.

What is the coolie coming to ? Leaving the Theatre, the other night, I hailed a chair and lay gracefully recumbent whilst the bearers bore me up Pedder's Hill. Arzived at my destination, I extracted from an unwilling pocket a twenty-cent piece, and this I handed to one of the chair boys. Looking disdainfully at the nimble 'fifth,' he uttered two words merely, -no wanchee; then the coin-contomning pair picked up their chair, and strode swiftly away. What is the coolie coming?

Our Chief Justice pays little heed to the protestations of the law-overtaken Chinose. A native gentleman, rejoicing in a couple of aliases, was ordered to Cantop, in the usual way, for an armed robbery, which he committed a couple of years back. He has a brother, wealthy in this world's goods, and, through this relative, he asked the Judge to save him from Canton, because he was a 'Reformer.' 'I believe I have heard that story before,' Sir William Goodman commented, as he declined to oblige; 'they are always Reformers when they are wanted at Canton.' When they get there they are mostly reformed, under a process which begins at the point of the sword.

Talking about crime reminds me of a somewhat good yarn, just imported from the North. A peculiar case of robbery is said to have recently occurred on the road from Hai Hwa Chung to Peking. Père Mester was travelling by this road when a party of brigands appeared and demanded all the money he had. He told them that all his money was on the ponies and that they could take it, which they did. Just after The Government Analyst reports that the robbers had left, Pere Mester remembered that he had a draft for Taels 500. sewn in his coat, and calling out to the robbers said that he had told them all his money was on the ponies. As a Christian, he felt he could could not act the lie, and told the robbers to take the draft. This so struck the thieves that they not only returned the draft but all the other money. saying they did not wish to rob honest men !

Examination for Teachers of Higher Grade Schools.

There is a demand and an increasing demand for well qualified teachers to take charge of the new schools, into which western education has been introduced into the curriculum. The officials who are looking after this department are showing a good example that might be followed with advantage in Hongkong. In order t obtain properly qualified teachers, a series of examinations are being held to get hold of the best men. As an illustration of the gradual upward tendency a specimen of some of the questions given in the third examination will perhaps be of some in-

A PARSEE WEDDING.

The following description of a Parsen of the 23rd October :--

As we briefly announced yesterday, marriage festivities on a large scale have been held during the week in the families of Mr Currimbhoy Ebrahim and Mr Gulani Husain Allana, both of them leading members of the Khoja community, and millowners in Bombay. On Sunday Miss Labbal Carrimbhoy was married at Pabaney Villa. the residence of Mr Currimbhoy Ebrahim, at Warden Road, Breach Candy, to Mr Abdulla Gulam Husain Allana. marriage procession was formed at the bungalow of Mr Rehmubhoy Allana, elder brother of Mr Gulam Husain, at Warden Road, and about 6 p.m. went to the residence of Mr Currimbhoy. To-morrow will be celebrated the marriage of Mr Ahmedbhoy Currimbhoy Ebrabim to Miss Sherinbai, daughter of Mr Dost Mahomed Allana, late brother of Messrs. Rehmubhoy and Gulam Husain Allana. In this instance, the marriage procession will be formed at Pabaney Villa, and will go about sunset to the residence of Mr Rehmubhoy in Warden Road. The families of both the Colombo. Capt. The steamer Monmouthshire of London, Capt. H. N. Vyvyan, which is due bere on her way to Japan, has had a novel exporience on this, her maiden voyage, to the Far East, meeting with a severe cyclone in the Arabian Sea. The Monmouthshire, which is of 9,329 tons gross and 3,296 tons net register, is quito a new vessel (says the Times of Ceylon), and left London with a general cargo and twenty-five passengers for Ching and Japan on the 4th October. She had a fine passage through the Me diterranean and the Red Sea, but on getting through the latter fell in with the cyclone. The vessel was six-hundred miles | colonies in order to put their sons into east of Socotra on Tuesday last, the 28th ultimo, when there was an unexpected change in the weather which betokened a cyclone. At daylight of that day a strong head swell made itself apparent, and there was a threatening appearance of sea and sky; and at 8 o'clock in the evening the swell had changed into a very heavy sea from the North-Fast, while the wind at the same time blew strong from the North-West. The glass began to fall so rapidly that Capt. Vyvyan wore the ship to southward and kept her stern on to the sea. Everything had been made fast in wedding is taken from the Times of India | the meanwhile to weather the gale; and all night the wind blew in gusts, keeping back to the westward. At 2 a.m. on the 29th the cyclone came down with full force. It blew a terrible gale from the South-West, while tremendous seas broke over the vessel continuously. Battered and benten the ship was tossed about mercilessly, but with ateam on she headed the storm. The barometer had fallen as low as 29-20. but at 3 o'clock it commenced to rise and by 8 o'clock the wind and sea were moderate. France is worse off from the point of view of the politician than we are. M. Combes is too well provided, as we know, with chattering colleagues, who will make speeches after dinner, and there are a whole host of outside annoyances for him. The coal strike, the recrudescence of Dreyfusard agitation consequent on the death of M. Zola, the evictions of the Sisters in Britany, discontent in the army, the fall in the Rentes, and the still recent Humbert frauds make a chain of woes which more than counterbalances the Siamese acquisition. The French want the civil service. Every Colonial possession that the republic holds is infest ed by a host of little functionaries wholly disproportionate in their numbers to the amount and importance of the work they have to do. The state is almost SHANGHAI. The British and Japanese Garrisons of Shanghai have both received o'ders to be ready to embark for their respective homes by the 22nd instant (says the China Gazette), and both camps are exceedingly busy in consequence, making preparations to shake the dust of Shanghai off their feet and betake their occupants back to India's coral strand or the livelier delights of When the Germans Grench are going is not given out locally, though it is only reasonable to suppose that a common date has been agreed upon for the withdrawal of the forces of all four powers, but with the usual continental love of secrecy and of keeping the ordinary unofficial man in the street in blissful ignorance of the comings and goings of the very superior class which wears uniforms and medals and carries long obsolete pieces of usoless iron et its side, and funcies the whole world is at its feet, our brave continental defenders give no inkling of the date they expect to clear out which they do not seem to be at all eager to do. But this is not to be wondered at considering that service in Shanghai, in the peaceful neighbourhood of Bubbling Well and the Cometery Roads, ranks as active 'war service!' and has corresponding extra empluments attached, all of which the luckless Chinese will be asked to pay for when the little bill is made up by and by. THE CHEN-CHOW MURDERS AND THE PUNISHMENT.

No praise is too high (says the China Times) for the vigorous action of Sir Ernest Satow which has resulted in the decree of which we publish a full translation in another column. We have so long suffered under the supineness of the powers that are presumed to be behind us when we penetrate into foreign lands, that we had almost lost hope of a change, but here we have come to judgment a Daviel and a Cyrus rolled into one. What Daniel has adjudged, Cyrus has caused to be inflicted. The punishments sound severe. Secondary responsibility is never carried so far in our own country, and it was therefore not unnatural that the opposing Chinese diplomatist should appeal to the absence of precedent, but this appeal was only another form of the common Chinese appeal to European conscience which is sometimes very hard to distinguish from mere softheartedness. True it is and always will be tion, we are governed, ultimately, by so long as the Chinese leopard retains his spots, that when the Mongol commits crime against the Caucasian and the question the proposed Bill is a bad one, and yet of punishment is for the Cancasian to decide, the latter must put off mere soft-heartedness and decide by a conscience enlightened by reason. must realise that if punishment is to be inflicted at all it must be adequate to fulfil the purpose of punishment in a word it must be severe enough DOUGLAS STEAMSHIP COMPANY, to be deterrent. The sort of puni-bment that will deter one race will merely afford a pleasant tickling sensation to another. a thing as priestcraft possible in the It is doubless true that often in China a mob becomes too strong for the official to control, but one of the principles of teetotaller is quite capable of making Chinese Government is official responsibil lity, carried sometimes to an absurd length. This principle is based upon the patent fact that the populace is easily influenced for good by any official who has the slightest pretensions to wisdom and firmness. When, therefore, a mob has become too strong for control, there is in that fact evidence of negligence in the earlier stages of unrest, One of the difficulties we have to contend with in such cases is the small esteem in which human life is hold in China. We which ended yesterday morning at two must enter into the Chinese official's state of mind sufficiently to realise that he generally cannot understand why so much fuss should be made about the lives of a few missionaries or merchants more or less. Old Li Hung-Chang voiced the common sentiment in Shanghai when discussing the fate of the diplomatic body in Peking. He insisted they were safe and that no harm off the soldier against the lawyer, and | was done, but when he was asked, 'What about the missionaries in Taiyuen-fu, and
